FROM THE GRAND KNIGHT

Brother Knights,

Happy Easter Season to all you Knights and your families. Holy Week and Easter is always a holy time. A good time to reflect on the wonderful gift Jesus gave to us all.

Spring finally is here and it took a long time getting here. The K. of C. is a busy place with a lot of work to do. We will be repairing our driveway in the near future. Our shelter house will get a new roof this year, plus a lot of little things that need to be taken care of will get done.

We notified the people who are eligible for 25 and 50-year pins that they would be given out at our April 9 meeting at 7:00 p.m. If you couldn't make it to the meeting, the pins will be mailed to you.

Of real importance now is preparation for the K. of C. Bar-B-Que. The dates are August 8, 9, 10 and 11. The Bar-B-Que will be here before we know it. I urge you to join us and enjoy the time with us.

See you at the Knights of Columbus.

Bob Klingele,
 Grand Knight

Perspective from the Pew

Another Easter has come to pass, and of course by now we are well in the Easter season. Recently, I was reflecting upon the Holy Gospel according to Saint John while waiting for Mass to begin, and this particular passage was stuck in my mind: "No one has greater love than this, to lay down one's life for one's friends."

Yes, Jesus was divine, and yes, He was also human, but what really stuck in my mind was this question; "Could I, a mere human, one who is mortal, knowingly lay down my life for another?" The obvious answer, an answer which is caveated (for the consideration of a family member), is yes!

But, what about someone I don't know or have never seen, someone who is a total stranger? Well, that is what I was pondering. There are examples in society of people who do this, those in military service, the fire fighters and police, and a few others whose profession perhaps would put them in this position. And of course it is not a situation that they are in daily, in some instances it may never happen, but it is possible. But the question is "Could I do it? Would I do it?"

Consider if you had time to think about this, not a decision that is needed to be made immediately, but rather you are given time to reflect upon, to meditate upon, would you still have the same answer? More importantly, are you prepared to make this decision, is your soul prepared?

We probably have put too much thought into these questions. Perhaps if we consider a different approach, what is Love? I like this simple, appropriate explanation:

"Love seeks one thing only; the good of the one loved. It leaves all the other secondary effects to take care of themselves. Love therefore, is its own reward." – Thomas Merton.

Perhaps we would be better prepared if we followed this simple but powerful guidance.
